Home in the Arts is invaluable not only because it increases literary skills but also because it provides an ongoing venue for children to discover and stretch their imaginations. VSA gives families in COTS shelters many ways to develop confident self-expression as a tool for advocacy in seeking permanent housing, jobs and other services." A frequent comment heard by our instructor was, "We've been waiting for you. This is the highlight of our week." We also continued our collaboration with the Visiting Nurse's Association to work with very young children and mothers among the Somali Bantu refugee population. Those families came from situations where the parents, not only children, had been completely deprived of literacy. Many of the mothers had never held a pencil or a book before arriving. Our Start With The Arts instructor, who had lived for 9 years in Africa as a child, was able to adapt the curriculum to address the beginning literacy activities of the children in a context that enlisted the support of mothers also learning English at the same time. This program served 350 children. (In FY 08 this Visiting Nurses Association collaboration will have moved to a different category of Home In The Arts because that program is directly about people who have been displaced or face housing challenges.) Includes Foreign Grants: No |                           | 76,482.                        |

This program was expanded in FY 09 to include Shelburne Museum for which 200 free tickets were distributed to senior centers, service agencies for adults with developmental disabilities, child care centers and families with disabilities.
